Committed to the credo that 'Legacy is not what we do for ourselves but what we are doing for the next generation', the endorsement body of various nations have come together to adopt a common framework for recognising legacy globally. Rather than being identified with the quality standards of a community, communities come together to uphold the belief that legacies are for those who have excelled within their personal capacity or professionally, role models for others to follow and are recognised globally. In the era of new technology and innovations, their skills, experience and professionalism have transformed quality standards and changed the face of global standardisation.

The organiser has coined selected categories of recognitions for Legacy leaders that are excelling and improving quality of life, quality of income and contributing to peace and harmony. The objective is to recognise and celebrate the excellence and unsurpassed legacy benchmark models. The organiser is confident that the ceremony is able to showcase prominent and top legacy personalities, with heritage that will be driving force of the next challenging era.
